She studied with, among others, James Torlakson, a watercolorist who has been shown in several New York galleries, Joe Price, who has created a unique process of hand-pulling prints, and Judith Morley whose expertise is in life drawing. Margie has received numerous awards from art associations in the area.

Working mainly in watercolor, color pencil, graphite and scratch art. She has also worked in oils and acrylics. When creating her pieces, she likes to artistically express what she sees around her from bananas to boats to gorillas and pets. Margie has also been commissioned to paint portraits of people and animals.
